Advanced Placement English Language and Composition is an intensive course designed to prepare students for the AP Exam in English Language and Composition. Students in this course read and carefully analyze a broad and challenging collection of writings to deepen their awareness of how writers use language, style, and rhetoric to create meaning. Through close reading and frequent writing, students will develop their ability to analyze texts. Formal writing will be process-driven and will include pre-writing, writing, and revision. Readings will be mostly non-fiction, but will also include some works of fiction. Students must prepare seriously since they will be required to take the AP exam. The cost of the exam will be covered by the school district.
